GROWER CHAMPAGNE

Terroir focused, small production, artisanal winemaking. Grower Champagne is something to be celebrated, not just for celebration. Here we have a small selection of diverse bottles that show the differing terroir and approaches to wine making across the region.

UNDER THE FLOR

‘Making sherry sexy again’ is a task attributed to Equipo Navazos, whose work seeking out and bottling extraordinary sherries has certainly helped to elevate sherry’s status among the uninitiated. But they are not the only ones pushing the quality and image of wines aged under a veil of yeast. All these bottles are the perfect way to start, or finish, a great meal.

ISLAND WINES

A determined group of wine-makers are creating some truly extraordinary and diverse wines from the mineral rich and mountainous soils of Mediterranean and Atlantic Islands. The combination of ancient vines and the freshness that comes from grapes farmed at high altitude is what makes these bottles so memorable.

THE OTHER COLOURS

Not all wines fit in the 'white' or 'red' categories. During the summer months especially we look to the rosé, skin contact and light red wines that are so thirst quenching and quaffable. Keep your mind open and expect some funk, some sediment, and a lot of enjoyment.

RIESLING

A lot of people steer clear of Riesling because they think it will be sweet. Yes, there are lots of fantastic examples of sweet Riesling. but when eating seafood we look to the drier styles. Precise, linear wines with bags of complexity.

CHABLIS

The unmistakable steely and mineral character of Chablis is what brings us back to this region again and again. The cool climate allows for less fruit and more texture and freshness, making these wines the perfect accompaniment to any seafood.

ALPINE

There are very few regions that are as synonymous with the natural wine movement as Jura and Savoie. Often compared to nearby Burgundy, both areas are known for their eclectic wines as well as wine makers, due to the varying terroir and strong local identity. Pioneering methods, small plots, extreme altitudes and unusual grape varieties make these some of the most exciting wines available today.

NEW MASTERS OF OLD GRAPES

Often the old ways are the best, but not always. We love finding producers who are reinventing the way we look at certain wines, or reviving wines or regions that have been forgotten. Make way for the new wave.

THE OLD GUARD

Not all the producers we love are mavericks. Whether coming from a long line of vinigerons, or the children of pioneers of the natural wine movement, these producers are maintaining sometimes centuries old traditions while innovating and leaving their own legacy. Big names, bold flavours, all excellent wines at the top of their class.

BURGUNDY

Synonymous with elegance and finesse, if you're looking for that extra special bottle, there's nothing quite like 'white burg'. Citrus and stone fruit, bracing minerality, buttery richness; all are hallmarks of the region. Along with the ubiquitous Chardonnay, Aligoté is gaining in reputation once again, and in the hands of the right wine maker can make wines with just as much character and enjoyment.
